IMPROVEMENT OF WATERWAYS

Senator Martin Hopeful of Securing Passage of Bill for Potomac Memorial Bridge.

(From Our Regular Correspondent.) WASHINGTON, D. C., December 1 .-The Rivers and Harbors Committee of the House is in session daily considering the Congress assembles. States are being considered now, but the Virginia and the Carolinas. Representative Maynard is here for the purpose of doing all possible to influence the committee to make a liberal appropriation for the improvement of Norfolk harbor but there will be no hearings oy the com mittee as these were all concluded last . It would be the veriest guess to say what amounts the committee will recommend for the improvement of Virnia harbors and rivers.

Senator Martin said to-day he was very hopeful of being able to secure the passage of his bill providing for the erec-tion of a memorial bridge connecting the tion of a memorial bridge connecting the Washington and Virginia sides of the Potomac. The bill passed the Senate at the last session of Congress, but it was held up in the House. President Reosevelt said recently that he coridally approved of project, but that other matters were ahead of it on the calendar of the House. The friends of the scheme are hopeful that the President will commend it in his forthcoming message to Congress, but they do not feel certain that he will do

Merchant Marine.

Merchant Mathie.

The advocates of measures for the upbuilding of the merchant marine of the United States are decidedly depressed at the outlook. Much was hoped of the joint commission appointed at the last session of Congress to investigate the whole subject, with a view to learning the cause of the disappearance of American freight carrying vessels from the seas, and to recommend such legislation as should be deemed necessary for its upbuilding. The ned necessary for its upbuilding. The mittee visited the leaung Atlantic committee visited the leaung Atlautic. Pacific and Gulf ports, and heard many of the chief importers and business men of the country on the subject. It was thought that the committee would recommend that Congress enact laws providing that gbods brought into this country in vessels flying the American flag should be admitted at a much lower rate of duty than goods brought in in foreign vessels. Several of the more influential Resolutions and the subject of the more influential Resels. Several of the more influential Re-publican members of the commission had adjusted that this would solve the prob-commission. It is believed that of the commission. It is believed that the talk of an extra session of Congress for the purpose of revising tariff schedules has had much to do with the change, President Roosevelt indicated soveral weeks ago that it might be a good thing to have an extra session for this purpose, At first, only revisionists in the Republican party were heard from and these invariably applauded the proposed action. They wanted to see lariff dulies They wanted to see tariff duties own. In some cases, where there vas no particular care concerning tariff the members who so promptly endorsed the extra session proposition probably did so because they thought the President wanted one. The "stand-petters" have been heard in a mighty chorus the past week. Nearly every man of consequence in the Republican party and Congress has advanced reasons why an extra session should no

Stand-Pat Argument.

This one fact is apparent to every one who is familiar with the views of Republicans as expressed in inferviews and publicans as expressed in inferviews and in conversation the past week. The only reason advanced against an extra session is that it would not do to open up the tariff question just after a campaign won on the platform of "Let well enough alone," which was stamped in red ink on every letter and document that went out of Republican national headquarters. One of the leading members on the Republican side of the House told me last night that he believed that in many instances duties were too little, and should stances duties were too high, and should be lowered, but that the Republican par would be inconsistent to argue tha re jowered, our that the Republican party would be inconsistent to argue that way now, and besdes, he thought the country could better stand tariff duties that were too high than the demoralization of business that would follow any effort to revise them at this time.

Assuming that there will be no extra session, and no revision of the tariff, which now appears to be correct, it is believed that the Republicans are opposed to even the slight break in the tariff well, which would be made by the reduction of duties on goods imported in American bottoms. Therefore, it is not at all likely that the marine commission will recommend such legislation, and if it should, there is less chance of its recommendations being adopted. It is possible that the commission will recommend somethine like rebates to American ship owners on certain port energes, but this is not known. It is not beloeved that ship owners on certain port enarges, but this is not known. It is not believed that such legislation would have much of feet upon the shipbuilding interests of the country. It is not unlikely that the countries of the countries in the countries of the called here. It is not thought that there will be recommendation for the payment of these subsidies directly, or to all Americans engaged in the ocean carrying trade. Democrats and many Republicans are disposed to shy at the word "subsidy."

Perfect Devotion.

"My idea of devotion," writes an observant critic in the Dambury News, "is exemplified in a Dambury man I know who is in love with a musical girl who has ideals. He has as much ear for music as a porous plaster, and his hands are like hains, yet he is taking plane lessons."

Skipper Remained and Could Not be Rescued Last 'Night-In Perilous Position.

(By Associated Press.) SAYBROOK POINT, CONN., December -The three-masted schooner Addic Jorcargo of lumber, is ashore on a sand bar her this forenoon. Two tugs sent out shoal water to get near enough to the embers of the crew landed at Black Hall, three inles from here, but the capitaln and cook are still on the schooner. Shortly after 2 o'clock this afternoon a signal of distress was observed flying from the rigging of the schooner, and with a marino glass Captain Lee and the cook the rigging of the schooner, and with a marine glass Captain Lee and the cook could he seen ellinging well out on the howspirt, waving their hands for assistance. Captain Lee, who is seventy-two years old, lives in Tuckato, N. J.

All hope of rescuing him and the cook from their perilous position to-night was abandoned at sundown. Captain Lee and the cook, who were afraid to leave the wrecked schooner, doubtless will be brought to shore in the morning. The Jordan is leaking badly, and it is feared she will prove a total loss.

Some of the crew who landed at Black Hill declared that the vessel was not sea worthy when she left Norfolk, but that she would have been all right probably had not the light on the breakwater here been mistaken for the New London harbor light.
